

OCEAN DIFFICULTIES
DELAY CABLE LAYING

Nero Deep Offered Impediments to Commerce With Philippines.

The Pacific Commercial Cable Company will land its cable to the Philippines on the military reservation of Fort San Antonio, a few miles from Manila. This is the reserve on which it has been proposed to build a summer palace for the governor of the islands.

A change of route has caused delay which will possibly postpone the completion of the cable for a fortnight beyond the estimated time when it was to be done. For 200 miles east of Guam it was found necessary to make a detour because of what is called the Nero Deep, a sink in the bottom of the Pacific in which a cable, if laid, would be beyond reach in case of necessity for repairing.

Trouble has been encountered also in establishing the cable stations at Midway and Guam. The difficulty at Midway is due to the possibility of disturbance from earthquakes. A long slack in the cable has been laid to and from the island, and it is believed that the case of an earthquake the cable would not be parted nor seriously injured.
